

FAQs

Call for consultants, Gender self-assessment for the National Police of Honduras

1. In light of the development of the COVID-19 outbreak, will the consultancy for the gender self-assessment for the PNH be carried out as planned?

The GSA is still planned to go ahead, but of course start dates will need to be revised once the situation here in Honduras stabilises. There may be a need to revise methods of engagement / participation of the Honduran National Police with the successful consultants due to COVID-19 issue, and this will need to be part of the approach from the consultants. It is envisaged that the work will start in-country in June, with remote prep work carried out during May. However, with the current international situation with COVID-19 all dates will be reviewed on a continual basis.

2. Should the deliverables for this consultancy be delivered in English and/or in Spanish

Spanish is the required language; however, additional English translations are desired.

3. Can DCAF indicate a budget ceiling for the assignment?

Due to internal policies we are not allowed to share budget ceilings during the procurement processes.

4. How many working days should the expert dedicate to this consultancy?

It depends on the methods used and the working plan to be agreed on. The current estimation for this consultancy is 9 months on a part-time basis (which can increase and decrease depending on the different stages of the self-assessment process). The consultant is responsible for managing the working days in such a way that the successful production of the deliverables, as defined in the ToR, can be guaranteed.

5. The dedication of the expert should be exclusively to this contract?

No, not as long as there is not conflict of interest and as long as the quality of the deliverables and commitments to this consultancy can be guaranteed.

6. Should the financial offer include a global sum or fees per working days?

A global sum with a budget that offers more details on the individual expenses for this consultancy, including honoraria.